

In an increasingly dynamic and uncertain business environment, a company's ability to survive and grow depends heavily on the effective implementation of risk management. The Board of Commissioners, as the supervisory body that plays a central role in ensuring compliance, governance, and the strategic direction of the company, is required to have a deep understanding of the principles, frameworks, and dynamics of risk that affect business continuity.

The implementation of risk management training and certification is a form of the company's commitment to strengthening the capacity and competence of the Board of Commissioners in performing their oversight functions more comprehensively. Through this activity, the Board of Commissioners is expected to be able to provide sharper strategic guidance, ensure adequate control, and encourage the creation of a risk-aware culture across all lines of the organization.

In addition to improving the ability to assess risk exposure and the effectiveness of mitigation measures, this training and certification also serves as a means of aligning risk oversight with good corporate governance (GCG) practices and sustainability principles. With standardized and measurable understanding, the Board of Commissioners can play a proactive, independent, and accountable role in addressing the company's strategic challenges and opportunities.

Thus, this training and certification is not merely a fulfillment of competency requirements, but an important investment in strengthening the company's resilience, competitiveness, and long-term sustainability.
